| December 2013 | Myanmar | Danida Fellowship Centre Lars Pedersen, Training Adviser, lp@drcentre.dk +45 3524 8472 | Course Leader | Election Course for Civil Society Organisations and Local Media in Myanmar The by-elections in Myanmar/Burma in 2010 and the planning of general elections in early 2015 posed a window of opportunity in terms of supporting the democratic process. In emerging democracies such as Myanmar/Burma election monitoring takes on heightened importance, as suspicions of the political system and the election process are strong. Observation can make an important contribution to peace building, since creating confidence in elections can help promote national reconciliation and sound democratic practices. Based on a presentation of political rights and the political system as well as being introduced to relevant stakeholders in Myanmar, the participants from civil society were trained in the process of election monitoring, including not only the activities at polling stations and tallying centres, but also the process leading up to elections as well as immediately after. |
