KEY QUALIFICATIONS

---

Mr. Bryld is in particular strong in identification, design, research and evaluation. He applies a structured methodological approach to all types of assignments aiming at ensuring logical and evidence-based results. He has undertaken more than 100 assignments in the last twenty years being Team Leader on more than 50 of them. He has undertaken more than 30 design, identification and formulation assignments, 35 reviews, evaluations and assessments, as well as multiple studies and analyses.

Stabilisation and resilience

Mr. Bryld has worked in fragile and conflict affected areas since 2001, focusing on stabilisation, resilience as well as engagement in the humanitarian-development-peace nexus. He has undertaken political-economy and conflict analyses at local and national level, and assessed the impact of development programmes on conflict. Assignments have included contextual analyses, identification, formulation and evaluations of donor strategies, resilience programmes, refugee and IDP related interventions, and conflict resolution processes. Analyses undertaken have included issues pertaining to marginalisation, migration, internal displacement, gender equality, women's empowerment and ethnicity. Erik has undertaken multiple trainings related to working in fragile states including HEAT.

Statebuilding

Mr. Bryld has over the years worked extensively with governance and statebuilding from human rights and democracy to decentralisation and public sector reform in great parts of Africa, Middle East, Eastern Europe and Asia. He has been engaged in the identification, formulation and evaluation of large as well as smaller scale statebuilding, human rights, justice, democratization, as well as decentralization programmes, focusing on rights holders as well as duty bearers. Mr. Bryld has experience in assessing the capacity of governance institutions at local and national level, and he is fully abreast with the application of a Human Rights Based Approach to development.
